

On Wednesday, September 26th, 135 of Nantucket’s nonprofit leaders, representing 45 Island charities, joined the Community Foundation for Nantucket for the first annual Nantucket Nonprofit Leadership Conference.

Thanks to the vision and generosity of a CFN benefactor, the Foundation was able to offer our Island nonprofit leadership teams and board members a full day workshop. Participants were able to learn from experts in the field on topics that included Strategic Planning, Board Development, Outcomes Based Planning and Nonprofit Finances. Workshop presenters included Bud Ris, Nanette Fridman, Brian Kellaway and David Orlinoff.

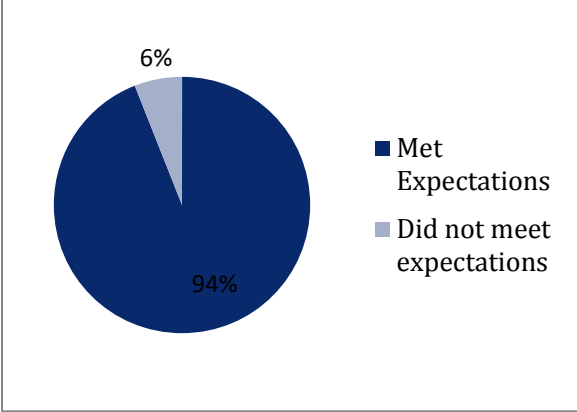

Dan Pallotta, world renowned speaker, TED Talk presenter and author of Uncharitable: How Restraints on Nonprofits Undermine their Potential, was our keynote speaker. He challenged the audience to fundamentally change the way they think about and evaluate charitable organizations.

We surveyed the conference participants and the results are below.

Did you attend as a nonprofit board member, ED or other staff?

Did the conference meet your expectations?

How likely are you to attend next year's conference?

Was the information presented at the sessions beneficial to you in your role in your nonprofit?

Which workshop did you attend in the morning/afternoon and how would you rate the session?

The results here are harder to summarize, but in general about 80% of all participants rated all their sessions in the good/very good/excellent range.

How satisfied were you with the networking opportunities made available during the conference?

100% answered satisfied or very satisfied!

All of us at the Community Foundation are very pleased with how our inaugural nonprofit conference was received by our Nantucket charities, and look forward to planning an equally successful event in 2019.
